“One Week Remains To Submit myPG Input”

Prince George, BC- The first phase of the myPG public engagement process will come to a close on January 14, 2010. One week now remains for the public to provide input into myPG, the City’s first ever integrated community sustainability plan. Information gathered at this stage will help form a shared community vision that will shape the future of Prince George.

“We encourage all Citizens to get involved if they have not already done so,” said City Councillor Garth Frizzell. “This engagement process is extremely vital to the development of a shared vision for our community.”

“Thank you to everyone that has shared their ideas for the future of Prince George, and I would ask everyone that has not yet participated to please take five minutes to be sure their voices are heard,” stated City Councillor Cameron Stolz.

Workshops will be held in February and March to develop strategies for moving from today to a shared vision of the future created by the community. There will be a number spaces in the workshops for community members that participated in the current envisioning phase of myPG. The strategies created in the workshops will be presented to the whole community, which will be open for public review and input.

MyPG is a sustainable initiative that empowers citizens to shape the future of our community, to maintain the best of quality of life in Prince George in the face of global trends and local challenges.
